Mastery Assessment and Plans (MAPs)

Joan Barrett, with Kim Weber-Yorga, shared the 'Path to Nursing Excellence' – a new way to encourage and document NFP nurses' growth and development that has been developed by the National Service Office. The approach is supported by a number of Mastery Assessment Plans (MAPs) that can be used to assess and record nurses' growth over time within the program.

Planning for the Upcoming Year: Proposed 'Virtual Learning Space' (VLS)

A proposal to facilitate appropriate processes to allow countries to discuss clinical and operational practice issues and learn together and from each other. Aware that all CLs are already very busy, so wish this to be a useful addition for everyone. This would be different to the CAG as the CAG is for sharing new innovations and developments in NFP, whereas this VLS would be a forum for the discussion of clinical and operational issues.

Quarterly meetings for research and analytical leads: As noted in the annual report, these have been requested and will commence in November.

International Project; Every 12-18 months the international team (IT) undertake an international project on behalf of all countries, focussed on an area that would be aided by further clarification or sharing of best practice internationally. A list of possible themes which were discussed by the group. There were varying views on the most important topic for the project. Everyone was asked to consider the options further and discuss with colleagues in their country. A list of potential topics will be sent to all CLs, so that everyone can express their preferences. The most frequently requested project theme will be taken forward.

COVID-19

The agenda for this meeting was amended to discuss the Pandemic COVID- 19 Virus, impact on program delivery and to hear how NFP program delivery is being managed in each country. It gave us an opportunity to look collectively at how we support and learn from each other at this challenging time

Dr. Olds joined the meeting and CNO, Kate Siegrist shared the updated USA Telehealth and Adjusted Home Visit Guidance. Kim Weber Yorga also shared the recent USA modifications to the education programme and the international guidance on telehealth was shared.

From this meeting, it was agreed that it is crucial for us to work closely together, keep track on what's going on and capture learning from our collective approaches to our ongoing support to clients at this time.

Highlights and Learnings from 2020

The first CAG of 2021 allowed us the opportunity to reflect on highlights and learning from 2020 as well as appreciating that COVID-19 was the main focus of all of our work. We heard the aspirations from those present for NFP in 2021. We also reflected on what should be the focus for the International NFP project in 2021-with strong consideration being given to NFP Education and how we can learn from each other from the various and blended approaches used. We also reflected on the personal journey that some of our colleagues in this CAG had been on in 2020, and look forward to continuing to both support and learn from each other in the coming year.

Refining Client Eligibility Criteria and Adapting Recruitment Processes to offer the Program to Those with Multiple Disadvantages and Most Likely to Benefit

Tine Gammelgaard Aaserud and Emma Broberg shared the work undertaken in Norway to both refine client eligibility criteria for clients with multiple disadvantages and develop the recruitment processes used by NFP nurses to explore potential client's history and current circumstances and confirm eligibility. This involves use of two 'exploring' visits with the referred woman, use of the STAR framework to guide exploration and discussion with the NFP supervisor prior to enrolment on the program. The process allows the woman time and space to fully understand the program before enrolling. Women who are not eligible are assisted to access other services suitable for their needs and in addition report gaining benefits from the exploring visits themselves.

Role of the Family Partnership Worker (FPW) in Australia

Nikki, a Family Partnership worker (FPW) and on her way to soon becoming a Registered General Nurse in Australia, gave a sensitive and powerful insight into the role that FPW plays in delivering NFP in Australia. Nikki shared with us the importance of the role in ensuring cultural safety for NFP nurses delivering the program and in fostering trust between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander families. We heard about the importance of understanding the longstanding culture and diversity within the communities as well and how Australia's Government is attempting to 'Close the Gap' for its most vulnerable communities by investing in the NFP program. Nikki ended her presentation by sharing a moving video by Dr Miriam Rose, 'DADIRRI' The Value of Deep Listening-The Aboriginal Gift to the Nation.

Temporary Variances

We heard from both Scotland and US as to their rationale for including women post 28 weeks onto the program, how the process is going and their plans to evaluate this temporary variance in the future. The discussion allowed for questions from countries who do not include this variance and the sharing of the challenges and benefits of making such a change to the program. We agreed to split the session so that in March we will be able to dedicate the time needed to hear from Australia and England around the temporary variances they have included.

Sarah Tyndall, Nurse Consultant, Family Nurse Partnership National Unit, England shared with us FNP England temporary variance to disengage clients early from the program, prior to 2 years.

This decision is based on robust Nurse assessment and discussion with the client over a period of time. These clients are usually well supported by family and friends, with less overlapping vulnerabilities and therefore less likely to benefit from the overall program aims.

Future retrospective evaluation of the impact for these clients is not planned currently, although data is collected on the number and profile of the clients.

Understanding and improving NFP participant retention in the United States and role of organizational context & community commitment in NFP program implementation and retention in the United States

Although the work is limited to NFP in USA setting currently, we had the opportunity to share International countries experience on finding and recruiting the 'right' nurses for the role and how organizations across the 7 International countries support the NFP nurse when in post.

Venice will update us at a later date when the project is further on.
